Notes on Upper Falls

From interview w Stanley H Roberts 3 Feb 1989:

Lyman Lee Donnan came to Utah ^{Homesteader} & settled in Upper Falls in Provo Canyon for his health. He had Tuberculosis ^{Silico}. Over time, apparently, he was healed of his illness.

He developed a resort there with a hotel, & he made fish ponds across the river to the east. He also fished from Provo River most every day.

They served fish dinners to patrons from those ^{people} stopping from Hiway 189 & from people from the Heber Creeper. They also served chicken ^{dumpings}.

During the construction of Strawberry Dam in Strawberry Valley the ^{US} Bureau of Reclamation had an electric ^{Hydro Turbin} generator in use. When they declared the generator as surplus, L. L. Donnan ¹⁹⁰⁶ obtained it & brought it to Upper Falls & installed it to provide electricity for his resort use. He piped water from the falls putting it under pressure. As it fell down, this water falling created a contained force, which drove the turbine to generate the electricity for his resort use.
